Can we find our way?

We are navigating a complex world — the tail end of the pandemic (hopefully), global demand for sustainability, increasing inequality, and the need to collectively face our history to find the most appropriate and inclusive path forward. At ASAC 2023, we are asking... Can we find our way?

This is inspired by wayfinding, the idea regarding how we navigate space. Wayfinding is a process for getting to our destination and serves as a metaphor that facilitates questions to ensure we chart a route encouraging research and reflection on topics that are important to all of us. We welcome submissions on this theme and relevant to one of the following ASAC divisions:

Accounting
Business History
Case Studies
Entrepreneurship/Family Business
Finance
Gender & Diversity in Organizations
Health Care Management
Human Resource Management
Information Systems
International Business

Management Education
Management Science
Marketing
Organizational Behaviour
Organizational Studies
Production & Operations Management
Social Responsibility
Strategy
Technology & Innovation Management
Tourism & Sport Management

Original Papers

ASAC will accept original papers, written in English or French and not previously published or presented elsewhere. All contributions will be peer reviewed; best paper awards will be given by each division.

Work-in-Progress

ASAC invites you to submit your work-in-progress and receive support from your colleagues in developing your paper. Work-in-progress submissions, written in English or French, should be 1,200 – 1,500 words (excluding references) and should otherwise follow the formatting of a paper submission. The abstracts of work-in-progress submissions will be included in the conference proceedings, but these submissions are not eligible for full publication in the proceedings or awards.

Case Division

For more information on submitting to the case division, refer to the submission guidelines available on ASAC.ca. The case division invites both English and French submissions, in either the regular or cases in development streams.

Symposia and Workshops

Members interested in organizing a symposium or workshop, in English or French, should submit a proposal according to the Symposium and Workshop submission instructions available at ASAC.ca. Proposals can be submitted to one division only.

Virtual participation

When submitting to ASAC, please indicate whether you wish to participate virtually or in person should your submission be accepted. We will include a virtual component, however, the format depends on the amount of submissions we receive and the availability of virtual presentation sessions. Several conference-wide sessions of the in-person conference will be made available virtually as well.

Detailed conference information will also be posted to ASAC.ca as it becomes available.
